RETTON MAKING 'REMARKABLE' PROGRESS IN ICU

Olympic gymnastics legend is battling rare form of pneumonia

By MIKE ROSENSTEIN

The family of former Olympic champion Mary Lou Retton shared some good news Saturday: the 55-year-old former gymnast is making “remarkable” progress as she battles a rare form of pneumonia. McKenna Kelley, one of Retton’s four daughters, posted an update on Instagram.

“We’re thrilled to share some uplifting updates!” she said.

“Mom’s progress is truly remarkable! Prayers have been felt and have been answered,” Kelley wrote. “Although she remains in the ICU, her path to recovery is steadily unfolding. Her fighting spirit is truly shining!”

Retton’s family disclosed earlier this week that she was “fighting for her life” and unable to breathe on her own.

“Her breathing is becoming stronger, and her reliance on machines is diminishing,” Kelley posted Saturday.

“Though it’s a lengthy journey, witnessing these improvements is incredibly heartening,” Kelley wrote. “She’s responding so well to treatments.”

Donations have poured into a fundraiser the family set up

AMERICA'S SWEETHEART: McKenna Kelley wrote on social media Saturday that her mother Mary Lou Retton — seen at Game 1 of the 2019 ALCS between the Yankees and Astros — is breathing stronger and that the Olympic legend’s “reliance on machines is diminishing.” N.Y. Post: Charles Wenzelberg to help offset Retton’s medical expenses after the family said she didn’t have medical insurance.

There have been more than 7,500 donations totaling more than $415,000 by Saturday afternoon.

Nicknamed “America’s Sweetheart,” Retton was 16 when she became an icon of the U.S. Olympic movement during her gold medal-winning performance at the 1984 Summer Games in Los Angeles.

The native of Fairmont, West Virginia, also won two silver and two bronze medals at those Olympics to help bring gymnastics — a sport long dominated by powers like Romania and the Soviet Union — into the mainstream in the U.S.

11-time PGA Tour winner Bean dead at 70

Associated Press

Andy Bean, an 11-time PGA Tour winner and three times a runner-up in majors, died Saturday after complications from a double lung replacement surgery, the PGA Tour said. He was 70.

Bean had lung replacement surgery in September. His friend, Alan Pope, posted on Facebook at the time that Bean’s lungs had been damaged from COVID-19.

A giant of a man on the PGA Tour at 6-foot-4, Bean once earned the reputation for wresling an alligator at Q-school, a story he explained a few years later was little more than swatting it on the tail while playing alongside a player who had never seen a gator.

“I walked over to the gator, who was more scared of me than I was of him. I grabbed his tail, and he jumped back into the pond. That’s all there was to it, but the story got out that I’d been wrestling this gator and threw him into the pond,” Bean said at the Doral-Eastern Open in 1977.

His best year was 1978, when he won three times, including back-to-back weeks at Quail Hollow for the Kemper Open and the Danny Thomas Memphis Classic in a playoff over Lee Trevino. He finished third on the money list that year.

His 11 victories — he also won twice on the Japan Golf Tour — covered 1977 to 1986. Bean also played on the Ryder Cup teams in 1979 and 1987.

He made a late charge at Royal Birkdale in the 1983 British Open, finishing one shot behind Tom Watson. He also was runner-up by one shot to Payne Stewart in the 1989 PGA Championship.
